PASSING OF KOREA

The formal annexation of Korea by Japan merely makes formal and frank what was already the substantial situation. Korea was a conquered province, ruled in the name of its own Emperor by a Japanese resident. It was no more independent than Egypt is, and the final extinction of the ancient forms will shock nothing but a sentimentality. No one has lost anything but "face"—a possession, however, much improved in the government, practical result will doubtless be a great improvement in the government, prosperity and personal liberty of Korea.

It is not quite correct to speak of this final act as "the extinction of a nation." Korea never was a "nation," in the Western sense. In fact, there is no word for "nation" in either the Chinese or the Korean languages, and there is no idea, in the common thought of those peoples, expressible by such a word. China, to the Chinese, is not a nation, but a world. The Chinese Emperor is the natural ruler of all peoples. The "Middle Kingdom" he rules directly, while the outlying peoples, at an inconvenient distance for direct rule, are tributary to him. This includes all peoples, English and Americans as well as Koreans and Tibetans. But the fiction, which applied in theory to all the world, was enforced in practice only in Korea and Tibet. Finally, in 1876, Japan made a treaty with Korea, thus recognizing it as a nation in the Western sense. In 1882 the United States followed suit and in 1883 Great Britain in the same way recognized Korea as an independent nation. After the Chinese-Japanese war, in 1894, Japan formally declared the independence of Korea. Thus, the status which Japan now decries was created by Japan. They that gave have taken away. And in all these vicissitudes, Korea has been simply the pawn in the great game of the Far East.

The independence which Japan proclaimed, after the Russian war, was withdrawn after the Russian war. In neither case were the Koreans a party to the determination of their own fate. Korea became formally a suzerainty of Japan; so much so that in 1907 Japan protested the appearance of Korean delegates at The Hague conference, and they were not admitted. Now the semblance of Korean local government is destroyed, ostensibly by the free consent of the Korean emperor—who will be paid, in money and titles, whatever Japan thinks his future conduct justifies.

The name, Cho-son, under which the new province takes its place in the Japanese empire, is not a new one, but is the name given the country in 1392, when the present dynasty was founded. The official name, Dai-han, now superseded, dates only from 1899, when the king proclaimed himself emperor. The name "Korea" is ancient and geographic. Originally it was "Koryu," and applied to only one province of the present territory. In the tenth century, this province, under the name of "Koryu," obtained dominion over the others, and that name, in one form or another, has remained the international designation ever since. Probably, in the usage of language, it will be the common name of the peninsula for many centuries to come.

REPUBLICAN CONGRESS.

By his letter to the chairman of the congressional campaign committee, made public this morning, President Taft rightly assumes his position as leader of the party. The statement is clear and emphatic, and in almost all respects will meet the approval of every Republican. It will be noticed, too, that this statement, like nearly all the authorized statements of President Taft, differs radically from the unauthorized statements unofficially attributed to him. President Taft's one great fault is that he has not yet got rid of the coteries of sycophants who misrepresent him to the public, and misrepresent the public to him.

President Taft's primary appeal is for the election of a Republican congress, and it is an appeal which ought to be heard. The President freely recognizes that there are two sorts of Republicans, and he clearly allies himself personally with the Progressive sort of them. But he emphasizes the sometimes overlooked fact that neither of these classes of Republicans is Democratic, and that there is a very important and vital reason why Republicans of both sorts should support a Republican nominee of either sort, as against a Democrat. Congressional elections are the one place in which non-partisanship emphatically does not apply. Except in cases of personal unfitness, there are extremely important reasons of national policy why Republicans should be elected to Congress, just because they are Republicans. The question which sort of Republicans should have been fought out, and recently was fought out at the primaries, with the result that there is a very large increase in the number of Progressive Republican nominees, and a practical assurance that if the next Congress is Republican it will, with the assistance of President Taft, be a Progressive Republican. That part of the fight has been finished, and for the most part won. The remaining task is to make Congress Republican.

The alternative is a Democratic Congress. And that means, from the standpoint of immediate results, stagnation, and from the standpoint of ultimate effect, reaction. There is nothing the reactionary forces so much desire as a Democratic Congress, and there is no cause that would suffer so much by such a result as the Progressive cause. A Democratic House, with a Republican Senate and President, would mean only deadlock—which is exactly what the reactionaries desire. They want everything left just as it is, and they would accomplish their purpose that way. Also, they would use, with some effect, the argument that the "split" in the Republican party had resulted in Democratic victory, and they would thereby discourage the fighting out in the next primaries of the differences in the party, in those sections where the victory is not yet won.

This victory must be a Republican victory, not because the Republican party is sacred, but because only as a Republican victory can it be won practically and constructively. The Democratic party in Congress is helplessly inefficient. Its leaders are afraid of it. They fear victory. And the Democratic party generally is loaded with the incubus of its own past. It cannot be for intelligent protection tariff reform except by repudiating its only remaining issue of anti-protection. It can not be trusted by the American people to carry out even good policies. It is afraid to declare for them, because it can not separate itself from the memory of a series fought for fifty years for the sake of issues, every one of which history has repudiated. In the Democratic party there is no hope, immediate or remote. And the hope of Progressive Republicanism is in a Republican Congress. The President's policies are progressive, and his temporary tactical alliance with reactionaries who happen to be in power is broken. His alliances in the next Congress will be with Progressive leaders. Make that alliance effective, by making the Congress Republican.

MISS HOHMANN GIVEN OVATION AT CONCERT

"Spring Song" and "That Mendelssohn Tune" Drove Honors

In a program of mixed classical and popular selections, Miss Hohmann played last night to one of the largest Sunday evening crowds that has yet assembled in the concert hall. A feature of the first half of the program was a soprano solo by Miss Hohmann. She sang "Christiana," a song from the light opera, "Red Feather," by Arthur Penn. Despite the difficulty of open air singing, accompanied by a band, Miss Hohmann was heard well by the crowd that filled the park bench section, many standing beneath the trees. The song, which is one requiring considerable range, was beautifully sung by the soloist and brought forth a splendid ovation. In response to the applause she sang "The Garden of Roses," Miss Hohmann was greeted with another salvo of insistent applause.

Mendelssohn in the original and later arrangements. In a symphonic setting time received equal applause last evening in a production of the "Spring Song" from the "Songs Without Words," and in the playing of "That Mendelssohn Tune," a rare time version of the air to which Miss Hohmann sang in one of her most famous classical numbers. The "Spring Song," in which the theme first appeared as a beautifully played clarinet solo by F. C. Brooks, who came from the East some weeks ago, was a big hit. Played with a rare sympathy, the motif of the "Spring Song" seemed to find its natural expression in the mellow tones of the wood instrument. Later the crowd took up the air, and the band playing a subdued accompaniment. The finale of the piece brought forth instantaneous and general applause. Later when the band dashed into the alluring swing of "That Mendelssohn Tune," the spirit of the crowd seemed to follow it, and the modernized version received as general and as enthusiastic applause as the original masterpiece.

Tobias's Hungarian Fantasia and Supper Music, two pieces of different nature represented the heavier part of the program. A medley from "The Three Twins" made a hit with the audience. The program, except for the finale of the "Star Spangled Banner," closed with a new number, a paraphrase of "The Palms."

SOON TO TEST PARTY STRENGTH IN NORTH

Coming State Elections in New England First Measuring of Forces

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—The political attention of the country generally is being focused on New England, where early in September the first measuring of strength between the Republican and Democratic parties in the state elections of 1916 is to take place. Vermont on September 4 and Maine on September 11 will elect state officers and congressmen.

On the same day as the Vermont election New Hampshire will hold her first state-wide primaries and the first under a direct primary law affecting an entire state to be held in the east. The terms of Senators Page of Vermont, Hale of Maine, Lodge of Massachusetts, Aldrich of Rhode Island and Bulkeley of Connecticut expire March 4, 1917. Hale and Aldrich have declined election. New Hampshire does not elect to the Senate again until 1922. The Republicans in Maine have nominated Governor Bert M. Fernald for a second term, while the Democrats are making a vigorous campaign with Frederick W. Plaford, mayor of Augusta as their leader. Dividing local interest with the gubernatorial contest is the congressional fight in the First district where the congressional parliamentarian, Leher Hyde, is seeking the seat on the floor of the House formerly occupied by Thomas B. Reed, who introduced Hyde into Washington executive circle. In neither Vermont nor Maine is any outward issue drawn between so-called "Progressives" and "Regular" Republicans.

The New Hampshire primary campaign is being fought with as much vigor as a state campaign, the struggle for governorship being between Bart Ramsall of Keene and Robert F. Bass of Peterborough, the latter being supported by the so-called progressive wing of the party.

PRES. TAFT URGES PARTY TO FORGET DIFFERENCES

 cient inducement to bring about a normal development of the wealth contained in these lands to aid in the building up of the country. Both the Democrats of the House and the Democrats of the Senate as a body, though their platform formally declared in favor of conservation, have taken any active part or can be counted upon to assist materially in the solution of these complicated questions.

Improvement of waterways is declared to be a subject of pressing importance, the President giving his plans already known, for dealing with the question. Statehood for New Mexico and Arizona, and publicity of campaign funds are also mentioned as pinpoints of contention. The President refers to the appropriation made to investigate methods to reduce governmental expenditures, and says: "I am confident that if full opportunity is given and a Republican Congress is elected to assist in the cutting down of the national expenditures by the adoption of modern economic methods in doing business, the government will reach a point of saving of many millions."

As to the future legislation the President says, a number of promises remain to be kept. He alludes to the provisions to regulate the issue of stocks and bonds by railroads to which he says the Democratic minority in the Senate gave its solid opposition on the ground that the central government has no power to make and enforce such regulation.

ON INJUNCTIONS.
 "In addition," he continues, "there is the promised procedure to determine how preliminary injunction shall issue without notice, and when. In substitution for this the Democratic platform proposes an amendment to the existing law which would create a privileged class of lawless workmen and would seriously impair the power of the courts of equity to do justice."

"Then there is the measure to promote the merchant marine engaged by foreign service, to which in previous Congresses the Democratic party has always opposed an almost solid front. There is the measure forbidding the acquisition of stocks by one railway company in a competing line and there are also those bills, already referred to, to secure further safety appliances on railways and to establish a basis for workmen's compensation."

"There is also the promise of the Republican platform to make better provision for securing the health of the nation, the most tangible and useful form that this can take would be the establishment of a national bureau of health to include all the health agencies of the government now distributed in different departments."

"Finally there is the 'Appalachian forest reserve bill,' which passed the House by a Republican majority, is on the calendar of the Senate and will probably pass at the coming session of this Congress."
 PLATFORM SUMMARY.
 "In view of what the present Republican Congress has done in the fulfillment of its promises and in view of the standard that it has set in respect to the sacredness of party pledges, I have no hesitation in urging all who are in favor of the performance of the remaining pledges, who are in favor of progress, in favor of practical construction, in favor of economy in government, in favor of the regulation of railways and of interstate commerce corporations, in favor of a bureau of health, in favor of a proper limitation of the power of equitable injunction, and who are in favor of measures to promote the merchant marine engaged in foreign service, to vote for the Republican candidates for Congress, in order that their wish for all this progressive legislation may be gratified."

"In closing it may not be inappropriate for me to invite your attention and that of all those engaged in advocating the Republican cause in the coming election to the fact that it is of the utmost importance to make this a campaign of education, to facts and to clear away the clouds of misrepresentation that have obscured the real issues and made it difficult to secure the Republican majority. Increasing the credit due them from the country for the tremendous task they have accomplished. "If this is brought clearly home to all voters and especially to the young men now voting for the first time, and they become impressed, as they ought to be by this record, with the difference in the governmental efficiency and economy of the Republican and Democratic parties, they will enroll themselves with the party of construction and progress, rather than the party of obstruction and negation, and resulting legislation of the sixty-second Congress will vindicate their choice."

"Sincerely yours,"
 "WILLIAM H. TAFT,"
 "Hon. William H. McKinley, chairman congressional committee, 111 Broadway, New York."

A TREE-CLIMBING DOG.

A government official in Bavaria connected with the Forestry Department has a wonderful dog, which is as clever at climbing trees as a cat. If his master fastens a handle on the top of the tree-tops the animal will climb up after it in the simplest way, and never fails to bring it down. He was taught by his mother, who was famous as a tree climber. The clever animal has won several medals by his extraordinary talent, and takes particular delight in climbing silver birches—not the easiest tree in the world to scale, for the trunk is particularly smooth and slippery.—September Wide World.

PEOPLE HAVE DECIDED TO RULE THEMSELVES INSTEAD OF LETTING HERRIN DO IT FOR THEM

Now that the smoke of the primary election battle has rolled away the people can see more clearly the great victory they have won.

The direct primary ballot was merely the weapon with which they fought to achieve the political freedom. That in the first contest they were successful is a matter for profound thanksgiving and congratulation.

It was the issue involved in the conflict that rendered the battle important. Compared with the great cause at stake the men who fought and won at last are but inconsequential. It matters little who shall fill our public offices, but it matters much whether our officers shall be chosen by the people, or whether they shall be chosen by the interests, or whether they shall represent those interests that prey upon the people.

There was but one issue involved in the primary election. It was whether the people of California chose to rule themselves or to be ruled by the Southern Pacific railroad. It was a question of tremendous importance touching the very foundation of free self-government.

For a quarter of a century the Southern Pacific has ruled California. It has governed in order that it might enrich the Southern Pacific railroad, and through its control of public affairs plunder the public without danger or restraint. It was the people on one side resolved to be free and self-governing; resolved to be the master and not the creature of the Southern Pacific railroad. The people have won, and always and ever they must win against any system that tends to enslave and despoil them.

The great question in California has been answered. It is writ in letters large and deep. The people do rule. The Express does not fight individuals, save only as those individuals stand as the representatives of a vicious system. Men are nothing but puppets, every one of them. That a just, righteous and a vital cause may triumph some men must go down in defeat and others on to victory. The Express has no bitterness toward those who have fallen.

CONGRESSMAN DUNCAN E. MCKINLEY SHAKES OFF THE DUST OF CALIFORNIA

In very bitter language, Congressman Duncan E. McKinley has declared to several parties he does not propose to come back to this state. He avowed he was mighty sorry he came across to make his last run for Congress, that he wished he had accepted the place President Taft offered him; that he intends to look after some position over there now at the hands of the President.

In one of these conversations the congressman was very profuse in his opinion of California and Californians generally, their ingratitude, etc.

Now, Congressman Duncan E. McKinley was repudiated by the voters of this section of California, because he has at all times and under all circumstances, sacrificed principle and the interests of the people to the interests of the big interests, to which he has been ever a servicable lackey and bootlicker.

Duncan E. McKinley is entitled to his opinion of California and the Californians. Probably the opinion of Duncan McKinley, held by those who know him best, would not appear well in type. Certainly the envanished remarks of a servant of the trusts are not worth noticing.

The Express mentions this matter now solely for the purpose of stating that, if President Taft rewards a man whom the people have repudiated, he will be doing a very wrong thing, indeed. Practically he will be splitting in the face of the people. He attempted it once before, in the case of Senator Fulton of Oregon, whom he wanted to appoint to a position on the federal bench, after the great Oregon exposure. He was prevailed upon not to do that, because of the swarm of protestants from some of the best citizens. What we have done for others, we can do for you.

AFTER SUFFERING ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it. I suffered from female trouble and fearful pain my back. I had the best doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. LOS BANOS LADIES' CLUB

GUEST OF CATTLE KING

HENRY MILLER

Two Hundred Acres at Romero to Be Checked

Out For Alfalfa.

West Side Will Make Better

Exhibit at State Fair

Next Month

LOS BANOS, Aug. 28.—About twenty members of the Ladies' Improvement club will leave here on the 2nd of September for Mount Madonna, west of Clovis, in Santa Clara county, to be the guests of Henry Miller at his famous summer mountain retreat. Mr. Miller paid the ladies a high tribute for the splendid headway they had made in their undertakings in this city and invited all the members about 80 in all, with all expenses paid both to and from his redwood retreat, and to remain there as long as they wished.

Will Wiley arrived on Saturday from his home in Oakland, he has come to make arrangements for checking "200 acres" of land near the Romero school house. If he can secure teams to contract for the work he will give it out but if satisfactory arrangements cannot be made he will do the work himself with a heavy road grader and traction engine and he expects to be able to do it in two weeks. He prepared 1600 acres in Yolo county in a month with a grader. The land will be planted to alfalfa and probably later subdivided.

Abundant water supply has been obtained by boring wells from which the land will be irrigated. Pumping plants are a success in this vicinity.

Frank Mainland and family spent a few days last week with friends at the home of the late R. C. Cline, which occurred Thursday, from consumption. Mr. Cline was formerly a storekeeper here and has many friends who will regret the loss of the young lady's death. She had been under physician's care for a long time on account of a dislocation of the hip.

The butter industry of the West Side will be represented at the state fair. E. A. Wilson of the Enterprise, has taken the matter in hand and secured 300 pounds of cream from six of the stations in this city, which was sent to the Dairy Delivery company at Gustine where it will be made into choice butter. Besides the butter, there will be other exhibits.
